TOOLE COUNTY COMMUNITY HEALTH IMPROVEMENT PLAN: 2017-2019

INTRODUCTION

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has." Margaret Mead

The vision of the Toole County Health Department is "healthy people living in a healthy community", and the work that we perform on a daily basis supports that vision. Health is influenced by many factors which include: age, genetics, health behaviors, access to medical care, and the environment where we live. Additionally, health is influenced by other social and economic factors such as education, health insurance, income, employment, and housing. While the health department can influence some of the factors that affect the health of the population, we acknowledge that we need partnerships to create a healthy community.

The purpose of a Community Health Improvement Plan is to identify how to strategically and collaboratively address community priority areas to improve the health and well-being of our community. Community members, stakeholders, and partners used an assessment process to formulate the Toole County Community Health Improvement Plan and determine health priorities to address in our county.

Working with these individuals and organizations, we believe we have created a plan that aligns healthcare organizations and other partners in our community to work strategically to improve the health of the people who live, work, and play here. The creation of this plan would not have been possible without our partners in Toole County; even more vital, the collaboration and work of our partners will be crucial in the successful implementation of our plan.

We are fortunate to have many thoughtful and committed citizens who collaborate to create greater health for our residents. The Toole County Health Department looks forward to continued collaboration with the partners identified in the Community Health Improvement Plan and other partners that we discover as we work to improve the health of our community.

We all influence the community we live in. We invite the residents of Toole County to not only embrace their individual health and the health of their families, but also work with us to make Toole County a healthier place to live, work, and play. We hope that this Community Health Improvement Plan will not just be a document, but rather a strategic plan to make Toole County an even better place to live.

COMMUNITY DESCRIPTION

Toole County is approximately 1,916 square miles of water and land with a population of 5,324. Of Toole County's population, 3,301 people live in Shelby, the county seat; while 2,023 live in the more rural areas of the county, which includes the communities of Ethridge, Galata, Kevin, Oilmont, Sunburst, and Sweetgrass. Toole County borders Glacier County to the west, Liberty County to the east, Pondera County to the south, and Canada to the north. One of the largest Montana/Canada border crossings is located in northern Toole County at Sweetgrass. Industry in Toole County is largely agricultural; though oil, wind energy, the border crossing, and a private prison housing state and federal inmates also contribute to the economic base of the county.

Healthcare plays a significant role within Toole County. The small rural population is served by a small health department with between four and five FTE. In addition, health services are provided by Marias Medical Center, Marias Care Center, Marias Healthcare Services, Marias Heritage Center, Center for Mental Health, Youth Dynamics, and other private providers, dentists, and doctors of optometry. Collaboration between public health, organizations, agencies, and service providers is a long standing tradition in Toole County.

COMMUNITY HEALTH IMPROVEMENT PLAN METHODOLOGY

The Toole County Community Health Improvement Plan began with an invitation to a number of stakeholders in the summer of 2015. The first steering committee meeting was held in November 2015 with 30 people attending representing 16 organizations. At the first meeting the vision of a healthy community and the priorities for health were determined, as well as how the group would work together over the next year to write a community health improvement plan.

The Steering Committee used the data from the Community Health Assessment completed in 2014 and the Community Needs Assessment completed in 2015 to determine the following priorities: Mental Health, Youth Risk Behavior, and Obesity Prevention. The committee also determined that the first priority that would be addressed was Youth Risk Behavior. In December 2015, a group of six people representing MSU Extension, the Toole County Health Department, Youth Dynamics, the Ministerial Association, and Shelby Public Schools met twice to determine the priorities health outcomes for Youth Risk Behavior, and the goals, objectives and strategies to achieve those outcomes. The group decided to focus on: suicide, adolescent mental health, adolescent reproductive health and risk reduction, and bullying. In January 2016, the Steering Committee met again to discuss the recommendations to address Youth Risk Behavior.

The Toole County Mental Health Advisory Board met in January, February and March of 2016 to determine priorities for the mental health portion of the Community Health Improvement Plan. The board completed a SWOT analysis of the current state of mental health care and knowledge of mental health in Toole County. After determining the top priorities, the board analyzed each to determine both feasibility of addressing and the importance of each. At the conclusion of that task, the following priorities were determined: increase awareness of mental health and mental health services in professionals, increase awareness of mental health in the general public, and increase the number of people screened for depression. In February and March 2016, the board determined strategies to address these issues and board members volunteered to be responsible to lead the implementation of these strategies.

A sub-group of the Steering Committee volunteered to address obesity prevention in Toole County. This group of three represented MSU Extension, Marias Healthcare, and the Toole County Health Department. After completing a SWOT analysis, the group determined the feasibility and importance of each recommendation and settled on recommendations for adults and children in Toole County.

In May and June 2016, the Toole County Health Department wrote the first draft of the Community Health Improvement Plan and scheduled the next meeting of the Steering Committee for June 2016. The first draft of recommendations for goals, objectives, outcome indicators, strategies and tactics was presented to the Steering Committee for approval. After the June 2016 meeting, the Toole County Health Department completed the next draft, which was discussed at the August meeting. The final draft of the plan was sent to stakeholders for public comment in September.

COMMUNITY HEALTH PRIORITIES

Based on the Community Health Assessment performed in coordination with the North-Central Montana Health Communities Workgroup finalized in November 2013 and the Community Needs Assessment performed by Marias Medical Center in coordination with the Montana State University Office of Rural Health in July 2014, the community health improvement committee determined the following health priorities in our community:

1. Mental Health
2. Youth Risk Behavior
3. Obesity Prevention/Nutrition and Physical Activity

ACTION PLAN

MENTAL HEALTH

Mental health and resilience are important aspects of our overall health. Mental health is closely intertwined with physical health; an individual with mental illness is more likely to also have physical illness. Chronic disease is also associated with higher incidences of substance abuse and psychological distress (SAMSHA, 2016). It is important to incorporate the prevention, early detection, and treatment of mental health conditions in the care of a person's physical health care needs to achieve overall health and community health. According to SAMSHA (2016), "incorporating mental and emotional health development and promotion into community health and public health strategies and activities can make all health promotion more effective and help prevent other public health issues such as teen pregnancy, community and interpersonal violence, tobacco use, and homelessness" (p 2).

Toole County is designated as a mental health shortage area, meaning there are not enough mental health providers in Toole County to appropriately prevent, detect, and treat the population. Additionally, as a state, Montana, experiences a shortage in mental health providers. As a result, Toole County must address knowledge deficits and resource shortages related to mental health in order to achieve greater mental well-being.

Toole County's long term goal is to achieve greater mental health and well-being, as evidenced by a decreased suicide rate and decreased rate in the number of adolescents who report they felt sad or depressed. In order to achieve that, Toole County will work on the short term outcomes of increasing awareness among community members of mental health resources available, increase opportunities for adolescents to interact with positive adult role models, increase the number of people screened for depression by primary care providers, and increase access to mental health services for youth.

YOUTH RISK BEHAVIOR

Adolescence and young adulthood are generally healthy time periods in life, though several health and social problems can peak or start during those years. Some examples are: suicide, motor vehicle crashes, substance use/abuse, smoking, sexually transmitted infections, and teen or unplanned pregnancy.

Health outcomes in adolescence are linked to many environmental factors such as school and family. Academic success and achievement are strong predictors of overall adult health outcomes. Proficient academic skills are associated with lower rates of risky behaviors and higher rates of healthy behaviors. Additionally, students who graduate from high school have lower rates of health problems, risk of incarceration, and more financial stability as adults. The school social environment affects students' attendance, academic achievement, and behavior. A safe and healthy school environment promotes student engagement and protects against risky behaviors and dropping out.

Adolescents who perceive that they are bonded to an adult and have good communication are less likely to engage in risky behaviors. Often, those relationships occur within the family setting, though other adults can fill that role, whether teachers, counselors, coaches, or other adult figures. Parents who provide supervision and are involved with their adolescents' activities provide a safe environment for their adolescent to explore opportunities and grow.

Toole County wishes to be a safe place for adolescents to grow into adulthood and provide positive adult influences in adolescents' lives. Our long term goals are to decrease the number of adolescents who report feeling sad or depressed, decrease the number of adolescents who report being bullied, decrease the number of youth who report using alcohol and other substances, and decrease the number of adolescents who report sexual risk behavior. We believe it is likely that it will take more than three years to achieve these goals. In the next three years, we will work to increase knowledge of these issues in the adolescent and adult populations, ascertain we are able to continue to measure these rates, and improve relationships between organizations, agencies, and the school districts to better utilize resources.

OBESITY PREVENTION

Obesity has strong implications on health throughout the lifetime; being obese or overweight increases the risk for many chronic diseases, including heart disease, type 2 Diabetes, some cancers, and stroke. While diet and exercise are key factors in obesity and overweight, community factors can influence obesity as well. Factors such as access to healthy foods and safe places to participate in physical activity also play a role in preventing obesity at the community level.

Toole County desires a long term outcome of fewer people who are obese and overweight. In order to achieve this long term goal, Toole County will work for the next three years to increase access to physical activity and healthy foods for all of our residents, as well as educate both parents and school staff about physical health. In addition, Toole County will work to better define the issue within our community by measuring BMI and tracking aggregate data.

CONCLUSION

We believe we have created a Community Health Improvement Plan that can strategically and collaboratively address community health priorities to improve the health and well-being of our community. We invite stakeholders, health organizations, partners and community members to embrace improving not only the health of themselves and their families, but to also work together to create greater health in Toole County. This plan will not be achieved by any one organization, rather it can only be achieved by working together.
